Only in the portrait, or in person too?

Coral bow tie, the parlour upright -- as you chose.

1 · Portrait only

The fox is the house's host you never quite meet: his portrait hangs in the hall and sits on every page's REMEMBER rail. The royal family on the board are the characters. The quietest.

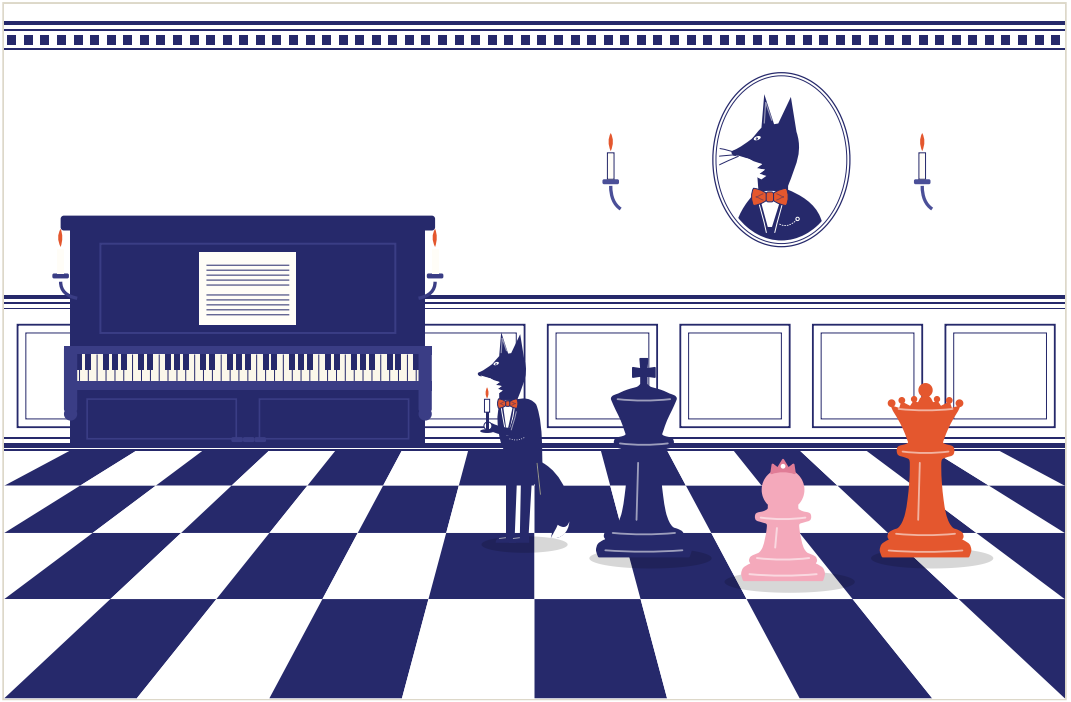

2 · In person at the doors MY PICK

The portrait stays on the pages (small, minimal). He appears in person only where you arrive: opening the door of the chapter map (the app's home and the guide's front page -- where the rabbit stands today), on the covers, and in the room with his candle. The pages stay calm; the world feels lived in.

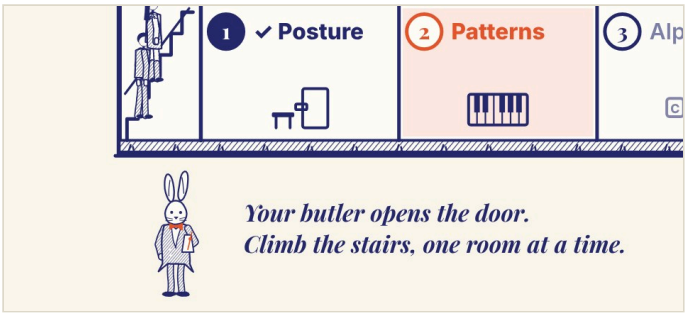

3 · In person in the lessons

He also turns up inside lessons to show things. Most characterful -- but it brings back the busy pages you moved away from when the royals became pieces.

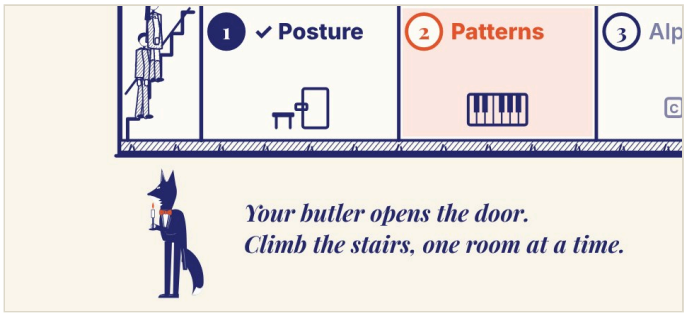

IN THE ROOM, WITH HIS CANDLE

THE MAP'S FRONT DOOR: TODAY

THE MAP'S FRONT DOOR: THE FOX

ON EVERY PAGE: THE REMEMBER RAIL

The room at night

The parlour upright, the fox by the piano with his candle, his portrait on the wall.

