Simple lines, classical shapes

Lines only, navy on white. Coral = where you are, green = done. The same moment: chapters 1-7 done, chapter 8 (Pulse) where you are.

ROUND 1

CLASSICAL

No colour added. The classicism comes from the shapes -- the vocabulary of a real Victorian street:

- Entablatures on every building: a cornice with dentils, a frieze with the building's name in spaced capitals, an architrave.
- Windows with architraves: a moulded surround, a keystone on each arch, a sill on two little brackets.
- Quoins (the stepped corner stones) on the Lodge, the Clock Tower and the Museum; pilasters on the Library.
- Columns with bases and capitals -- Ionic at the Academy, slim ones between the Theatre's arches.
- Balustrades with turned balusters and urns; finials on the roofs; a plinth under every building.

Every building shares one storey -- the plaque, the windows, the numbers and names -- so the street reads the same all the way up; only the tops change.

The plaque, the chess-square numbers, the names and Clara's place are unchanged.

Close up

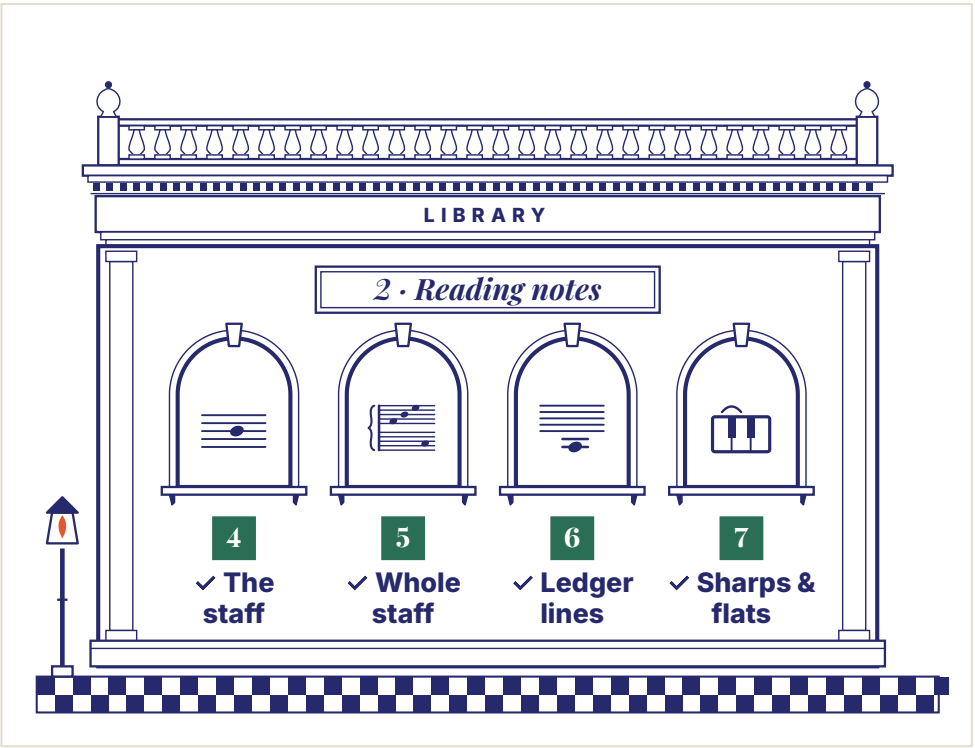

From the bottom of the street.

1 · THE LODGE

carved bargeboards, a finial, quoins, chimneys with pots

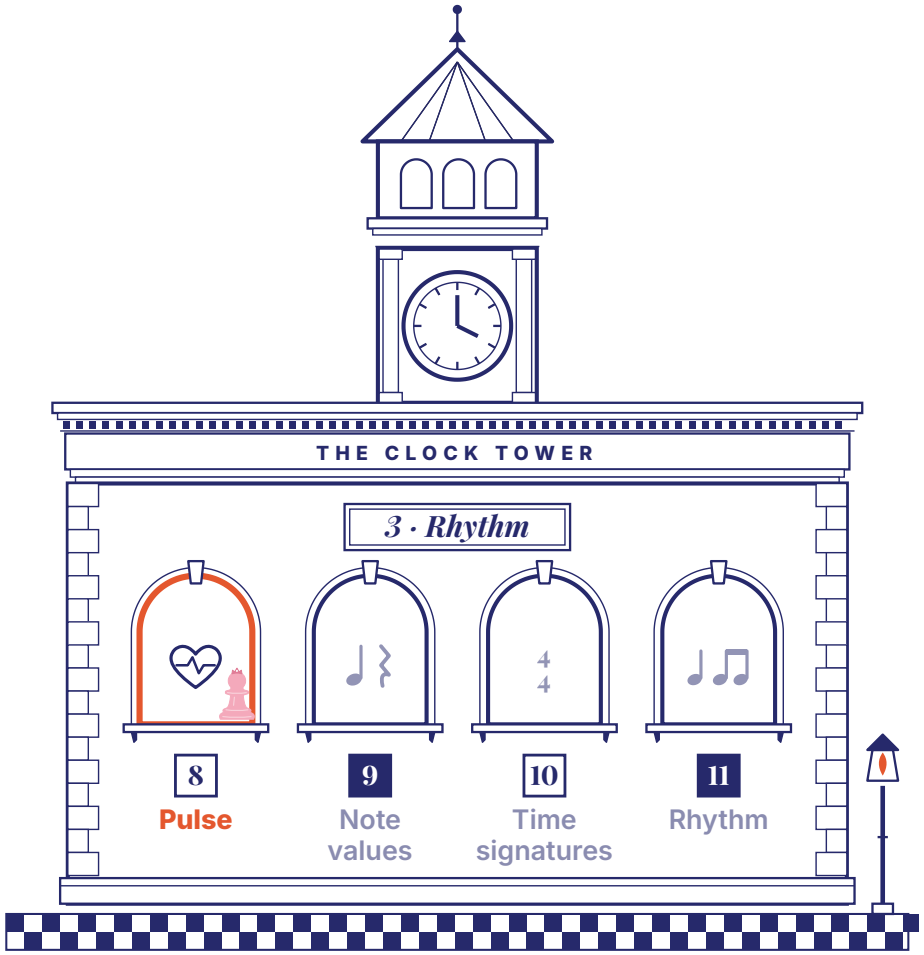

2 · THE LIBRARY

a balustrade with urns over a full cornice, pilasters at the corners

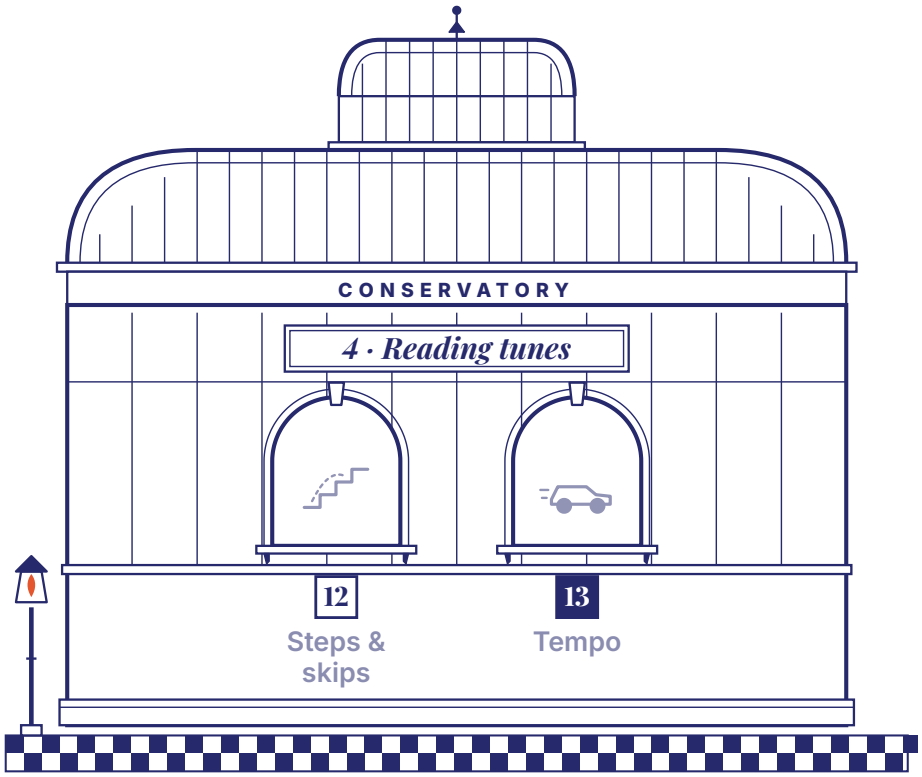

Close up Going up.

3 · THE CLOCK TOWER

a spire, an arcaded belfry, a clock stage between pilasters

4 · THE CONSERVATORY

a palm house: curved glass shoulders on iron ribs, a raised lantern, a low stone wall

Close up Going up.

5 · THE ACADEMY

a temple front: a pediment with an oculus, Ionic columns, steps

6 · THE THEATRE

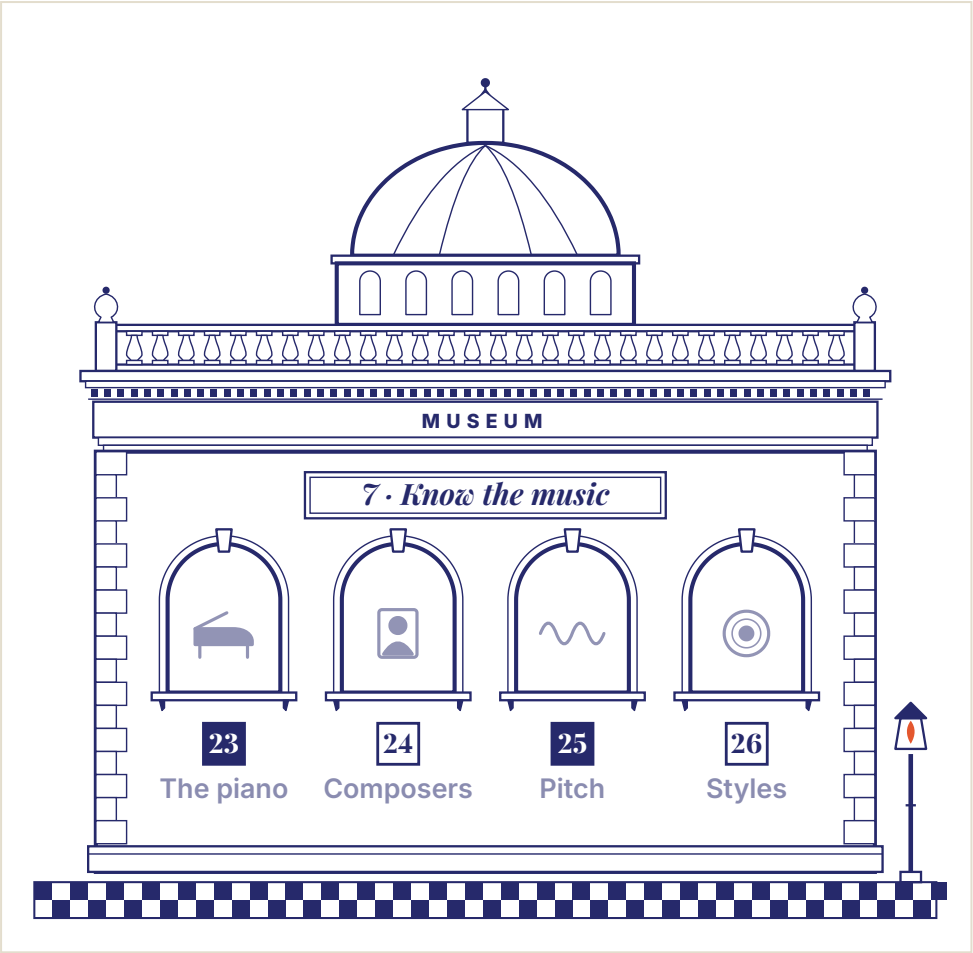

a mansard roof with round dormers, an arched attic with a lyre, an arcade on columns

Close up

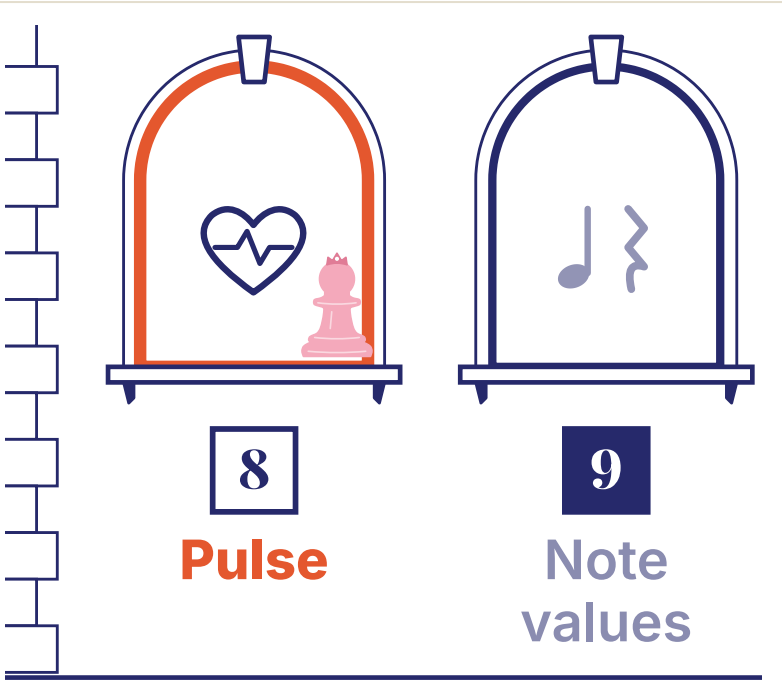

The top of the street, and one window at full size.

7 · THE MUSEUM

a ribbed dome on an arcaded drum, a lantern, a balustrade, quoins

ONE WINDOW, ENLARGED

A moulded arch with a keystone, a sill on two brackets; the number on a chess square, the name under it. Coral and Clara mark where you are.
